This new motion capture technology introduces dramatic new things that make the game's scoring in real-time players and powers dribbling runs, one-on-ones, goal celebrations, goalkeepers, cards, and players out of control. Xavi Hernández said: "We are very excited that FIFA 22 will be the first football video game to be powered by live motion capture data. We've worked on the development of FIFA for 16 years and we're now building on the success of the past 17 years. "The data collected from real-life players during a game is comprehensive and detailed. It brings players and fans closer to the action and enhances the game's authenticity and excitement. Live motion capture data is so close to what you actually experience in a football match, you can only imagine what it brings to the game." AI comes to life and adds intelligence in battle Jérôme Valcke, Head of Game Development, said: "We are proud to present the most significant addition to FIFA since FIFA 14 -AI." "AI drives the game in exciting ways. We have introduced Soccer AI Attacking

Intelligence to identify runs, build-up play, and mark-up players, providing a more complex and realistic opponent. It's now our most intelligent attacking tactic. "With the introduction of defending, the way that the opponent defends is now more intelligent and reactive. The more the defenders move to the ball, the more they will offer pressure to the attacking player. These new defensive skills are represented by the new defending intelligence system. "FIFA is all about player individuality and movement, something that the game's new physics engine offers a realistic level of detail and realism. We've reintroduced control force to a system that will become essential to experienced players." The gameplay engine powered by LIVE technology The FIFA 22 engine powered by the LIVE technology is the most sophisticated of any soccer game. FIFA has introduced its next-gen physics-powered engine – the FIFA 22 engine Powered by LIVE technology, the core engine that drives the game. The engine is the most advanced in the history of FIFA and was designed specifically to offer the FIFA players new gameplay experiences and real-life reactions. The engine powered by the LIVE technology has been developed and tuned using an unprecedented amount of gameplay data and
